New website features toys, books, exercises, and activities to strengthen speech skills in children

JUNE 22, 2020 – Parents who are either wondering whether or not their child has a speech delay or have a child who has already been diagnosed commonly branch out to find speech therapy resources on their own. One new website, Speech and Sound Clinic, is making it easier for parents to find trusted speech resources designed to strengthen speech skills in children.

Speech and Sound Clinic has just launched their new website, which features a wealth of resources including books, toys, exercises, and activities designed to help children increase speech skills.

In addition, the Speech and Sound Clinic team offers a variety of articles designed to answer questions about speech delay and other issues in children. For instance, some recently published articles from Speech and Sound Clinic include “What Are Good Toys for Autistic Toddlers?”, “How to Organize Toys for Toddlers”, “What Causes Speech Delay in Toddlers?”, and “How to Know if Your Child Has a Speech Delay”.

Parents and caregivers can find a list of trusted resources to help children who have speech delay, ranging from books to activities, at Speech and Sound Clinic.
